FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Ted Lauzen Announces Bid for Delaware State Treasurer

(Dover, Delaware) Ted Lauzen, an investment manager, combat veteran, and father of four, recently announced his run as a Democratic candidate for State Treasurer. This follows Lauzen’s financial report yesterday which showed $371,411 on hand for the campaign ahead.

After serving in combat as a Marine helicopter pilot, Lauzen and his wife, Sarah (originally from Milford), chose to raise their family here in Delaware. While completing his MBA and law degree at the University of Pennsylvania, he co-founded Grey Fox Wealth Advisors. His company currently serves approximately 300 clients and employs nine finance professionals here in Delaware.

Lauzen is running to use his investment management experience to support the state’s finances. The State Treasurer acts as the “investment manager” for the state of Delaware by investing retirement funds for state employees, managing financial wellness programs, and coordinating statewide financial boards.

“As an investment manager, I’ve worked closely with Delawareans across the state to evaluate their investment opportunities and to build brighter futures,” Lauzen said. “With rising prices and funding uncertainty, Delawareans deserve to know that an experienced leader is managing their tax dollars. This moment matters – it’s an opportunity for us to protect Delaware’s financial future, promote financial literacy, and prioritize state investments.”

Lauzen currently volunteers for several community organizations, works on the Advisory Board for Horn Entrepreneurship at the University of Delaware, and serves as the Treasurer for the Delaware YMCA, one of the state’s largest non-profit organizations.
